Photographer of the Year

PETER MULLER
Adaptive Boxers

This is a relatively new sport, developed by one particular gym to encourage wheel-chair users to take up boxing. It is still in its infancy and is a fascinating concept. These guys train hard and don't hold back, it involves a whole new skill set and I really hope it takes off.

Best New Talent

ALENA SOLOMONOVA
Wilting

The project explores the theme of withering and the desire to preserve youth. Dried flowers and plants in each photo symbolize the natural process of withering, they reflect not only physical but also emotional aging, the accumulation of experience and internal transformation. The plants are dry and lifeless, but they still have beauty. They are beautiful in their frozen form, but at the same time very fragile. The blurred surface, covered with different substances, serves as a metaphor for modern attempts to hide the traces of time.
