PX3 2020 TOP WINNERS

Alberto Giuliani
Photographer of the Year

The photo series San Salvatore, depicting the doctors and nurses of the Intensive Care Unit at the San Salvatore Hospital in Pesaro, Italy, has won the $5,000 cash prize and the Photographer of the Year title for its honest demonstration of heroes of the COVID-19 crisis.
The photographer's birth city has been at the top of the COVID-19 contagion and death charts. The photos were taken after twelve-hour shifts without break - according to the artist, "In the deep imprints left by their protective masks, I found a symbol of their sacrifice, but above all, I found evidence of the pain, fear and helplessness of standing before an unknown enemy."

Mohammad Rakibul Hasan
Best New Talent

The Last Savings photo series touched the hearts of the jury with its deep insight into the despair-filled hunger emergency sweeping over Bangladesh. People who are out of work are living from day to day, with as little as 40 Taka (50 US cents) at home to feed the family. The photo series shows their last food supplies, with many families anticipating the worst case scenario: "We have to drink poison, if we cannot go out for work. Who will save us from hunger?" said one of the subjects, Hamida Begum.

As Best New Talent, the photographer is awarded a $2,000 cash prize, his works to be exhibited at the PX3 Exhibition in Paris, along with all the 1st Prize winners.
